Owning a vintage sports car is often a dream for many people. Whether buying a classic car for your own private collection or just because .... it's a great hobby to have. We came across this incredible 2007 Noble M400 sports car from British car maker Noble Automotive Ltd.

Noble is a low-production British sports car company. Noble Automotive Ltd. first opened its doors in 1999 in Leicester England. The company's founder is Lee Noble. He simply wanted to produce a more affordable, rear engine and rear-wheel drive sports car.

It has developed several, exciting sports car models including the M12 GT0, M12 GT0-3, M12 GT0-3R and of course the Noble M400. The Noble M400 and M12 GT0-3R share both the same car body and chassis. In addition, you will notice a few small differences in their engine plus suspension.

This 2017 Noble M400 has a factory VIN NUS0185 (PA issued Vin number 5W123124PA, on title). The car was purchased by the current owner new on 12/4/2006 from 1G racing in Ross, Ohio. This stunning car features a black interior and has a gorgeous, Titanium metallic paint finish.

Weighing in at only 2,320 pounds, the M400 produces 425 HP, so is capable of a 0-60 mph time in just 3.2 seconds. While it may not have the same cachet of similar cars in its class, the Noble M400 certainly proves itself. The sports car has pavement-pounding performance and standout aesthetics.

With only 75 cars produced, the Noble M400 provides an amazing driving experience for the money. But it is also quite rare. Sadly, it is not a well known car brand. You may have to answer numerous questions such as "What kind of car is that?". But you will definitely be the star of any car or other social event. Or just simply be your own hero on spirited back road drives!
